OUTSTANDING FICTION FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

FANNY HERSELFBy EDNA FERBERAuthor of "Dawn O'Hara," etc.*

What happens when a remarkable girl dares the adventure into the business world of Chicago is the theme of this new novel, which the N. Y. Sun calls "the best and most substantial work Edna Ferber has turned out."

A department store buyer, whose judgment has proved right times without number, writes as follows about this novel of a splendid girl, Chicago and Big Business: "I do not know when I have read a novel that I have enjoyed so well. I feel quite positive that Miss Ferber's will be one of the biggest, if not THE biggest, novel this fall. The story has such charm and individuality, and every page is so filled with love and understanding of human nature, it will be a joy to sell it." Four illustrations by J. Henry. Net $1.40.

ANNE'S HOUSE OF DREAMSBy L. M. MONTGOMERYAuthor of "Anne of Green Gables," etc.*

All who have read "Anne of Green Gables" will want this new novel in which Anne's "dream" comes true, but all romance lovers will enjoy it, whether they have read the author's previous works or not.

It is a wholesome story of a seacoast community with romance, pathos and humor happily combined. The Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph considers it "the finest of all the stories Miss Montgomery has written about the one-time waif of Green Gables." With cover inlay and frontispiece in full color. Net $1.40. Second Large Printing, 64th Thousand.

The famous editor of "Life," returning to a field in which he is a proved master, gives us an extraordinary novel of a woman and a lover with a strange inheritance.

"Readers of 'Amos Judd,' 'The Pines of Lory' and 'Pandora's Box' know the beguiling and human quality of Mr. Mitchell's writing. This time he has mixed those qualities with the wonders of science to make a story more amazing than anything of Jules Verne's."—Brooklyn Eagle. 20 remarkable illustrations, and 22 amusing decorations by the author. Net $1.50.

With Bindloss again in the Canadian Northwest. Exciting events follow one another quickly in this novel, ranging from a thrilling cross-country chase over England, where the pursuer is the pursued, to a hand to hand fight in a little hotel in the California mountains. Interwoven in this swift story of strong men and women are two delightful romances. Frontispiece in color. Net $1.35.

KIDDIESBy J. J. BELLAuthor of "Wee Macgregor," etc.*

The small boy and his mischief portrayed for the delectation of his elders. The wee Scotch and English laddies whose stories are related here will keep the reader in an enjoyable state half way between laughter and tears.

Wee Macgregor, who has already made a name for himself in the author's previous stories, is the hero of a number of the narratives. Net $1.50.

THE LITTLE GRANDMOTHER of the RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

REMINISCENCES AND LETTERS OF CATHERINE BRESHKOVSKY

EDITED BY ALICE STONE BLACKWELL

Here is Catherine Breshkovsky's own story, edited from interviews, speeches and letters, by one of her dearest American friends, Alice Stone Blackwell, of Boston, for so many years the editor of the Woman's Journal. No more engrossing book on any phase of the Russian Revolution has been written than this amazing narrative of "Baboushka" (little grandmother), as she is affectionately called, who has spent 30 of her 73 years in exile in Siberia and has lived to witness the realization of her life-long dream.

"No woman of modern times has had a more dramatic career."—The Outlook.

This is a volume of over 100,000 words, and the latter half of the book consists of the heart-revealing letters written by Catherine Breshkovsky to her devoted friends in America.

THE LIFE AND LETTERS OF EDWARD EVERETT HALE

BY HIS SON, EDWARD E. HALE, Jr.

All but seven of a jury of fifty representative critics, including literary editors, college professors of literature, etc., who made up a representative 1917 collection of 300 books for exhibition in the National Arts Club of New York, voted for THE LIFE AND LETTERS OF EDWARD EVERETT HALE. This is the largest number of ballots cast for any of the 300 new books of the year.

The long-awaited life and letters of this famous preacher, author, patriot, and the guide, philosopher and friend to untold thousands, will be out in ample time for the holidays. In these two volumes Dr. Hale reveals himself in the selections from his many letters, journals and notebooks, which his son Edward E., Jr., Professor in English at Union College, Schenectady, New York, has carefully edited.

Here is a two-volume biography comprising 200,000 words, making a total of over 800 pages, and illustrated with a photogravure frontispiece and eight half-tone pictures in each volume, published at $5.00 net, boxed.

THE AUTHOR'S SHARE

IN summarizing in a recent issue the article printed under the caption "Unfair Reductions of Royalties" in the Bulletin of the Authors' League, we unfortunately gave the impression, thru sparse use of quotation marks, that the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY also held the view expressed in the Authors' Bulletin, altho in an editorial note we declined to believe that any reputable publishing house would undertake to make changes in a contract without securing the author's assent. The Author's League now explains, in a correction, printed in another column that the word "not" was interpolated by mistake in the Bulletin article and that in the particular case in question, the author was requested to assent to the proposed change. The Executive Committee of the Authors' League was led into premature conclusions as to the complaint made by one author, and possibly the mistake of language and of inference may have the happy effect of clearing up misunderstandings likely to arise under present abnormal conditions.

The arrangement between publisher and author is usually in the form of a legal contract, which cannot be altered on either side without the consent of the other. The share of the author under the ten per cent royalty, which until recent years was almost universally the rule in this country, was based upon a general theory of "half-profits," avoiding by means of the stated royalty on retail price the complexities of calculation as to cost and returns which had made so many complications and misunderstandings between publishers and authors in England, where an actual division of calculated profits, half and half, had been the usual or frequent basis of practice. The fact that royalty has been based on retail price, instead of the actual price received by the publisher, has in itself lead to misapprehension, for inexperienced authors have been known to argue that it was not fair that the author should receive fifteen cents and the publisher $1.35 on a $1.50 book! Of late years, leading authors have demanded, and in many cases have received, larger royalty percentages, often very onerous on the publisher. The best solution of this difficulty, and one now frequently in practice, is probably found in an increased royalty on editions beyond a stated sale, sufficient to cover original cost of composition and plates. This furnishes a very fair basis of contractual relation in cases where the popularity of the author gives his book exceptional sale.

As the royalty is based upon the published retail price, the publisher has had to content himself with what he actually gets out of the margin between the actual cost of an edition to him and the actual price which he gets at wholesale, deducting from the latter the author's stated royalty. Under recent conditions of increased cost of paper, printing and service generally, the publisher has been hard hit under the royalty plan, especially where royalties are excessive or unusual, altho the royalty plan still remains the best one. The increase in costs has even affected books already in print, for the expenses of distribution and sale have advanced as well as the printing cost. To cover such increases, publishers have generally been obliged to advance retail prices and in a number of instances have asked authors to consider the acceptance of the same actual compensation per copy, involving a lower percentage of royalty than that stated in the contract. This proposition was, of course, up to acceptance by the author. Many authors have acceded, tho some have declined. Authors have naturally taken the ground that their expenses as well as those of their publishers have also increased, and that, therefore, they should have the same percentage on the increased retail price, and it is also suggested that the effect of increasing the retail price of a book may be to lessen its sale, and thus to decrease the proportionate return to the author. The case is one of many resulting from war prices, and demands careful and friendly consideration from both sides. The author will not be wise, in his own interest, in requiring such remuneration as to make the sale of a book unprofitable to the publisher.

Quite another question, tho apparently on similar lines, is that of the reduction of the author's payment on books sold in quantity at lower than the usual wholesale price, as to reading circles like Chautauqua and others in the Central States, which buy outright large editions of designated books, selected in view of competition as to price as well as quality. Publishing contracts should, and usually do, contain a clause relating to such editions, specifically when books are used for supplementary reading or other educational purposes, the margin of profit on books for school use being very close. There is no threat made or implied in the request of a publisher to an author to permit a lower payment to the author on such sales. It is to be kept in mind that the royalty contracted for is usually a percentage on the published retail price, so that without some modification within or under the contract, the publisher would be obliged to pay an amount per copy double the percentage on the regular price, when a book is sold on an edition of possibly ten thousand copies at half rates as is sometimes the case. In view of the close margin on such sales, the publisher could not make them, except at a loss, without reduction of payment to the author and, therefore, could not make them at all. In a word, the author benefits as does the publisher by net returns from these exceptionally large sales, altho neither gets the amount per copy he is entitled to expect from ordinary sales. The effect of such sales on retail bookselling is quite another question, which we are not now undertaking to discuss.

In conclusion, we may emphasize afresh the desirability of a full understanding between publishers and authors and the undesirability of drawing premature conclusions from ex parte statements on either side. It has always been a matter of pride to the American publishing trade that relations with authors have been on the whole so satisfactory and harmonious and so free from the many complications and misunderstandings which have too often been the rule elsewhere. It is to be hoped that the Authors' League will become more and more a helpful factor in preserving the tradition of friendship.

We have more than once had occasion to emphasize the importance of the advent of women into the book-trade, as booksellers and, in a few cases, as publishers, and this is now signalized by the organization of a national association of women publishers and booksellers. It is interestingly coincident with the date on which the Empire State was added to the list of States already admitting women to the suffrage, altho this relation is, of course, accidental. We give the new Association cordial welcome. The question will naturally arise whether women should not rather put their energies behind trade organizations already existing. Unfortunately there is still somewhat of a tendency in certain quarters to treat women members of the trade with a certain condescension—this despite the fact that they have contributed perhaps the most notable impetus to bookselling the trade has had in the past two or three years. Women took a prominent part in the last convention of the National Association. As yet, however, they are excluded from the regular trade gatherings in New York and Philadelphia—tho not in Boston—and it is no doubt largely due to this fact that the new Association, with headquarters in New York, has been formed. It would seem to us highly desirable for the trade in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere to meet the new movement with a prompt offer to join forces.

At the approaching holiday season when the public are buying gifts, the generosity of buyers should be turned to good account thru the suggestion that a book is the best present for the soldier boy—that most easy to get to him, that most likely to be of good to himself and his comrades, and that most easy to keep. The suggestion of a book box for the soldiers, made by Grosset & Dunlap, has been adopted by many booksellers and should be a feature of every bookstore. The box, illustrated in a recent issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, may be easily made from an ordinary packing box covered with red, white and blue cambric or paper, and should make effective appeal in each store to holiday buyers. The bookseller should be ready to offer suggestions as to what books are most desirable for this purpose. In many cases the gifts will be individual and may be dropped into the boxes, duly stamped, for dispatch thru the post office. But the boxes should have a wider scope and invite contributions of new books and also of old books which may be sent thru the organized library system by the help of the local library to our soldiers in the field. By all means, let there be a common and concerted effort, a pull together, in this good work.

How many New York State booksellers are grasping the opportunity thrust upon them to sell books of civics and government to a million more or less new voters? From what we have seen they are very much in earnest in their desire to become thoroly informed as to their new duties and responsibilities. Reading clubs in practical politics and state government have already been formed in a great many cities of the state. Here is another opportunity for the bookseller to take the lead. A prominent table display of suitable books—and school texts in civics are the most practical help—and a little judicious advertising will almost surely bring results if gone into without delay. Such standards as Bryce's "American Commonwealth" should also get a special revived sale for the same reason.

A LETTER on British and Canadian copyright, printed elsewhere, assumes that the British Order in Council, therein quoted, refers to published works. In fact, it covers only section 1 (e) b of the British Act of 1911 referring specifically and solely to unpublished works. These are protected without formality "if the author was at the date of the making of the work a British subject or resident within such parts of his Majesty's Dominions as aforesaid." This preserves to a citizen of the United States the same common law rights in unpublished works which he has in America, and has no bearing on published works. We print the letter, nevertheless, as this view may be current in other quarters.

PUBLISHERS MEETING A 20 PER CENT INCREASE IN PRINTING COSTS

So spectacular was the rise in the cost of paper last year and the year previous that it completely overshadowed the very gradual but very steady rise in printing costs which has been going on coincidentally during the same period. The abrupt labor demands of two weeks ago, however, precipitated a crisis and brought publishers face to face with the fact that they have a new source of trouble.

Last week we sent out an informal questionnaire to about twenty of the largest book publishing houses in an endeavor to secure a consensus of informed opinion both as to the extent of the rise in costs to date and its probable effect upon book production. About one-third of the publishers interrogated operate their own plants, or are in close affiliation with one. The replies showed practical unanimity on all the points covered.

It was agreed (with one exception which "had seen no appreciable advance" and one reply which was silent on this point) that printing costs had, since the outbreak of the war and up to the labor increases of this month, advanced about 10 per cent. One large house reported 11 per cent on composition, 40 per cent on electrotyping, no increase on presswork during this period. Another large house estimated 15 per cent.

There was further agreement that the immediate cost increases of the past month had added about 10 per cent more yet to printing costs. (Several replies indicated this increase as one on presswork only, as at that time the labor increases in other printing departments had not gone into effect.) One large house, operating its own plant, estimated its total increased costs to date as "between 15 and 25 per cent." One of the older publishing houses estimated that printing labor had risen 6 per cent, printing materials 60 per cent.

Only one of the publishers interviewed was inclined to think that these increased costs would result in any immediate diminution in book output. One other foresaw some effect but thought it would "probably be slight." Another pointed out that, if an increased cost of 150 per cent in book paper (relatively a more important factor in book manufacturing cost than printing) had had little influence on the book output, it was hardly to be expected that a 25 per cent increase in printing costs would have much influence.

One important publisher says in this connection:

"I do not think that increased printing costs alone will result in any immediate diminution of the book output, but I do think increased costs in all directions, printing, binding, paper, and overhead, together with the necessity for an increasing margin of profit to the bookseller to meet increased cost of living may result in so increasing the list price of certain books to the point where the sales will be greatly restricted. Indeed, I am inclined to think that the increased list prices on fiction have already begun to reflect themselves in reduced sales, altho it is only fair to say that in all probability the fact that the public is not so interested in the lighter fiction has something to do with the decrease. On the other hand, it has been our experience that the demand for informing books on subjects relating to the war has tended to take the place of the decline of sales of lighter books, if not actually to give us an increasing business."

The answers to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY's fourth question—whether or not the recipient was inclined to believe that increased manufacturing costs are weighing more heavily upon periodicals than upon books, and whether therefore the book output may be helped relatively—aroused more diversity of opinion. In general the answer was "yes," altho one publisher "saw no reason to expect such a result"; one (who issues no periodicals) said frankly he "felt in no position to judge," and two said flatly "No."

One very large publisher, whose periodicals are, if anything, a more important department of his business than his books, said: "Book sales are not affected by magazine sales I believe." Another, also a periodical publisher, tho on a smaller scale, writes: "I think the increased manufacturing costs are bearing more heavily upon periodicals than upon books and I would not be surprised if this worked out to the advantage of books; certainly it does not work out to the advantage of publishers of magazines."

The head of one of the older conservative publishing houses writes: "Naturally, if the printers advance our prices, we must in turn advance the cost of our books to meet these increased costs. There is a legitimate beginning and end of all such increases. When the increases are fair, the public will pay the cost. When the increase is unfair, the public will refuse to purchase the books. In my opinion the costs have now risen to a point where it will be dangerous to all concerned to make further increases. The paper makers, the makers of book cloths, the binders and everything connected with the manufacture of the book has increased very largely since the war began. I think there is now a genuine effort on the part of the highest grade manufacturers of the country, assisted by the Government, to call a halt in the matter of increasing manufacturing costs. The high cost of everything has nearly approached the point of a menace. The real point at issue in this as in all such cases really comes down to the question: Is the rise in price legitimate in the face of existing conditions?"

WINSTON CO. TO ENTER TEXT-BOOK FIELD

In addition to Doubleday, Page & Co., the John C. Winston Co. will also enter the school-book field January 1. It is an interesting coincidence that despite the difficulties of war-time publishing two houses should thus announce, within a few weeks of each other, their intention of entering the welter of text-book competition with the new year.

The Philadelphia house has in preparation a series of text-books under the editorship of Dr. William Dodge Lewis, Principal of the William Penn High School, of Philadelphia. James G. Stradling, for many years connected with the American Book Co., will be the Sales Manager of this new Educational Department.

In the selection of authors and the treatment of the various subjects Dr. Lewis has had the advice and active co-operation of a number of prominent educators. The books announced for January include: A series of readers by Sidney G. Firman, Superintendent of schools, and Ethel H. Maltby, Primary Supervisor, Glen Ridge, New Jersey, illustrated by Frederick Richardson, well known as an artist in color illustration for text-books; The Young American Readers by Jane Eayre Fryer, author of the well-known "Mary Frances Books," which will teach civic virtues and community relations and responsibilities by means of interesting stories; a series in community civics for the later grammar school and earlier high school years, including "Our Community" by Samuel H. Ziegler, of the West Philadelphia High School for Boys, and Helen Jaquette, of the Frankford High School, a text-book for urban communities; "Our Neighborhood" by John F. Smith, of the Berea College Normal School, a text-book for villages and more scattered communities; and "Citizenship in Philadelphia" by Dr. J. Lynn Barnard, of the Philadelphia School of Pedagogy, and Jessie C. Evans, Head of the Department of History and Social Science of the William Penn High School of Philadelphia, a book created to provide a text to meet the new course in civics adopted by the Board of Education in September, 1917; a series of histories for grades four to eight inclusive, the first to be by Smith Burnham, Head of the History Department of the State Normal School at West Chester, Pa., and the text following the new syllabus of the American Historical Association; and a treatment of English grammar from the point of view of use, rather than from that of grammar for the sake of grammar, "Grammar to Use" by Dr. William Dodge Lewis, the editor of the Winston Educational Department, and Helen M. Lynch. Announcements for the future include a dictionary for the grades constructed on new lines; a series of spellers, arithmetics, language books, and several other contributions to text-book literature of progressive thought in education.

SUPPOSE you were opening a bookstore within a stone's throw of the busiest, most hurried, and apparently least bookish financial corner in the world—the intersection of Wall and Broad Streets in Greater New York—how much would you dare pay for rent, what sort of books would you stock, in short what special steps would you take to justify the particular brand of nerve which it undoubtedly takes to launch such a venture? These are the problems confronting Doubleday, Page & Co. in their Liberty Tower Book-Shop at the corner of Nassau and Liberty Streets, the third of their chain of book-stores.

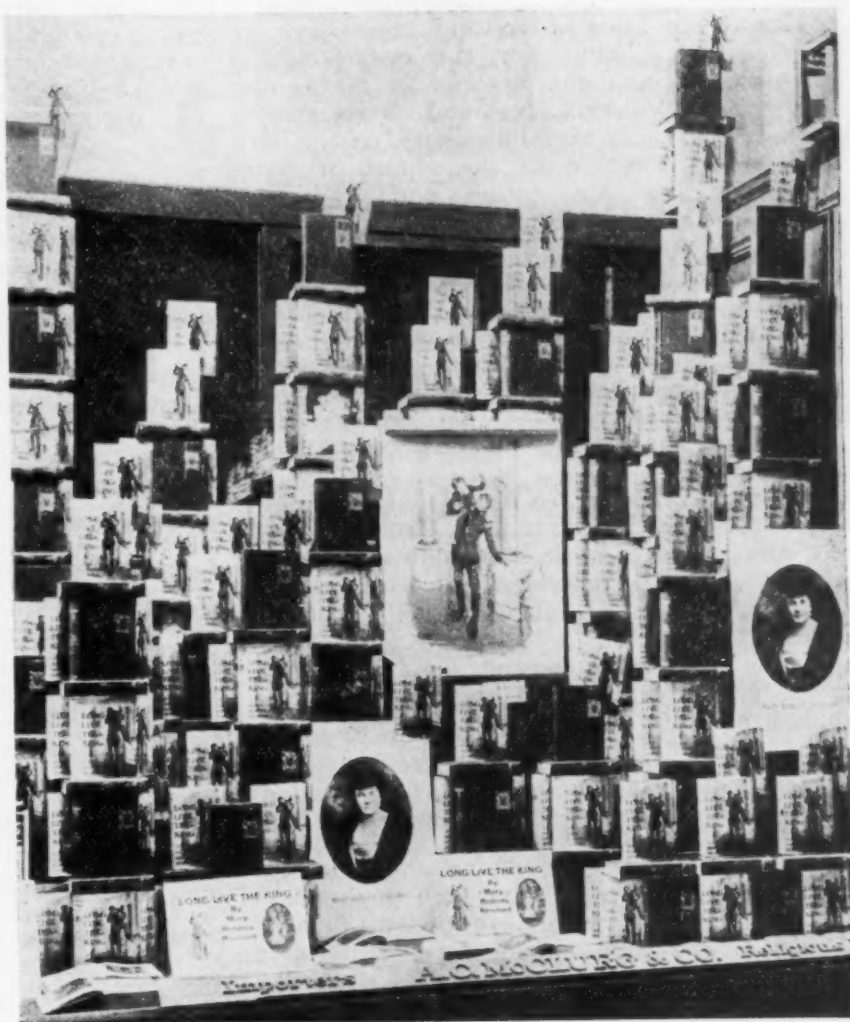

The physical features of the new store are of particular interest: For a single room about 16 by 35, below the street level and with an entrance from narrow Liberty Street and another from the Liberty Building—an office building for professional men—Doubleday, Page & Co. are said to pay approximately $3500 to $4000 rent. A tiny office has been made by straightening out a bowed plate glass window and flooring over a stairway originally connecting with a restaurant downstairs. Some eight steps lead from the street to the floor of the store; these have now been broken by a tasteful landing four steps down onto which the door opens and which juts out into the clean bright interior for all the world like a ship's companionway. In order to give the store as much chance as possible to be seen from the street there are windows along the front and side, left open at the back so that passers-by look directly into the store. The interior is white and mahogany, with rows of shelves all about the walls and closets for reserve stock below them, three or four tables, rugs, a built-in seat and a Windsor chair in the corner—even the cash register is finished in mahogany! Inverted electric lighting is used.

The limited space enables the store to carry only some $7000 of stock and this has been selected with the utmost care. For the present the store is confessedly feeling its way. Its stock is at present just like any other very well selected stock, fiction in front, shelves of Masefield, Service, Amy Lowell, sets of O. Henry, Kipling, Wilde, Maeterlinck, biography, war books, business books with a special and inconspicuous corner devoted to those hippety-hop, fat, thin, dumpy reference books that rarely look well on the shelves—and don't you believe looks aren't considered in a shop like this! The imminence of the Christmas season has justified this general experimental stock. Later business books will undoubtedly be brought to the fore. Another question only time can answer is whether a Wall Street crowd will buy juveniles or whether this will be left to the wives who shop up-town. Sets should have some sales in such a rich neighborhood tho this region is already combed by subscription agents. The store expects in time to have a representative solicit business in neighboring offices—of course dictionaries and all sorts of reference and business books are especially suited to such treatment.

An opening gun in the shop's campaign to get acquainted was a simple descriptive list of twenty important war books sent to some thousands of nearby business men. "If you are too busy to come," this added, "send an assistant, or ask your secretary to fill out the blank on page four."

G. V. Sieffert, who travels the coast and New England, is temporarily in charge of

WOMEN OF TRADE ORGANIZE WOMEN'S NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF BOOKSELLERS AND PUBLISHERS

TWENTY-ONE women connected with the book and publishing trade met at the Sunwise Turn Book Shop in New York on Tuesday evening, November 13th, for the purpose of organizing a league for the women of the book and publishing trade. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. R. E. Sherwood, of Sherwood's, acting as temporary chairwoman, who stated the purpose of the meeting. The following officers were duly elected:

Mrs. R. E. Sherwood, president; Miss Alice M. Dempsey, of Gimbel's, 1st vice-president; Miss Belle Morris, of Koch & Co., 2nd vice-president; Miss H. J. Pfansteihl, of Hubbels-Leavens Co., treasurer; Miss Lulu Jacobs, of Greenhut's, secretary.

The following constitute the board of Managers: Miss M. Jennison, of the Sunwise Turn Book Shop; Mrs. Weiland, of Abraham & Straus; Mrs. G. M. Pleasanton, of Brentano's; Miss Taylor, of Chas. Scribner's

Sons; Miss Hancock, of Bamberger; Miss M. Kramer, of Thomas Nelson & Sons.

A temporary name for the organization was adopted, and the association is to be called the "Women's National Association of the Booksellers and Publishers."

After the adoption of the report of the committee and constitution and by-laws, there was general discussion of topics of interest to the trade, in which a resolution was adopted that the secretary send cards to all the publishers soliciting their help in securing members from the women in their employ. The word "National" in the title means that membership is open to women throuth the country.

Chair-women of the various committees are as follows:

Printing, Miss M. Kramer, of Thomas Nelson & Sons; Entertainment, Miss Jennison, of Sunwise Turn Book Shop; Financial and Auditing, Mrs. Pleasanton, of Brentano's; Membership, Mrs. Weiland, of Abraham & Straus.

A committee was also appointed to report at the next meeting on a suitable place for holding monthly meetings and dinners.

HOUSE OF HARPER DOING ITS "BIT"

HARPER & BROTHERS, who in the hundred years of their existence have seen three wars and are now going thru the fourth, made a spirited campaign among their employees for the Second Liberty Loan. As a result, their five hundred employees subscribed no less than $84,100.

Furthermore the following twenty-eight members of the Franklin Square staff have enlisted—not one of them drafted, either, the house boasts: Nelson Demarest, 1st Cav., N.G., N. Y.; John Weiss, U. S. Navy; Frank O'Rourke, U. S. Navy; Charles Eskert, U. S. Navy; Edward Bernard, U. S. Navy; Herman Denzler, U. S. Navy; Frank Diehl, U. S. Navy; Henry Wombacher, U. S. Navy; Winan Klesick, 1st Inf. N. G., N. J.; Thomas Healy, 14th Inf. N. G., N. Y.; Frank Holly, U. S. Navy; W. Campbell Brown, Aviation Corps; William Robinson, 71st Inf. N. G., N. Y.; Walter Hopkins, U. S. Field Artillery; John Murphy, U. S. Navy; Joseph Clarke Wood, Royal Flying Corps, Canada; Milton Brough, 14th Inf. N. G., N. Y.; Raymond Van Ripen, Mounted Sig. Corps; J. S. Barbazon, Texas Nat. Guard; John Mortimer Hill, 2nd F. A., N. G., N. Y.; Charles Geiger, N. Y. National Guard; Albert McNamara, 1st Cav. N. G., N. Y.; James Phillips, 47th Inf., N. G., N. Y.; Frank Peterson, U. S. Army; Keon F. Hart, U. S. Navy; John F. Buck, 23rd Inf., N. G. N. Y.; Richard Schering, National Army; Martin C. Phair, 23rd Inf., N. G., N. Y.

Meanwhile the London house has recently been seeing service, for the other night the nose of a shrapnel shell ripped thru their roof.

ANNUAL BOOK EXHIBIT AT NATIONAL ARTS CLUB IN NEW YORK NOW IN PROGRESS

THE annual exhibition of the books of the year at the National Arts Club in New York is continuing thruout the present month, punctuated by a series of informal discussions in formal dress of various literary matters each Wednesday evening, and by club teas each Saturday afternoon.

An interesting feature of this year's exhibition is that, instead of leaving it to each publisher to send a representative lot of his books, a selected list of some 500 books was made up and sent out to a jury composed of the literary editors of the principal daily papers of the United States, ten or twelve professors of literature, and an equal number of men of science. Each was asked to check the 300 titles which he considers most worthy of exhibition—and from these markings the committee made up the collection for display. For the benefit of those interested the actual number of checks each title received is displayed at the club. These checks do not, however, disclose anything of particular interest to anyone in the trade as the critics have caused no upsets in rating—everything is heavily checked which one would naturally expect to be so checked. According to Mr. E. J. Wheeler, of the committee in charge of the exhibition, "The Life and Letters of Edward Everett Hale," for which all but seven of the fifty jurors voted, received the largest number of ballots cast for any one of the 300 books. Ernest Poole's "His Family," received the greatest number of votes in fiction, 32, as compared with 29 each for Kiplings "A Diversity of Creatures," Eden Phillpott's "The Banks of Colne," and Alice Cholmondeley's "Christine." In biography, 39 ballots were cast for Mark Twain's "Letters," and 38 for Viscount Morley's "Recollections." Brander Matthews's "These Many Years," and Garland's "Son of the Middle Border" each received 36 votes; Fabre's "Life of the Grasshopper," 37; Gosse's "Swinburne," 38, and Gorky's "In the World," 35.

On November 28, the last evening of the exhibition, the subject for informal discussion will be, "Shall the illustrator illustrate the author or the magazine?"

One of the most interesting features of the exhibition is a large number of books and magazines written, printed and bound in Central and South America. They afford an interesting study of American publishing.

WAR SAVING ON METHOD OF ORDERING TEXT BOOKS

EARLIER ordering of school text books by boards of education offers a fruitful field for saving in war time, according to Henry P. Kendall, of the Plimpton Press whose statement on the subject has been transmitted to the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior.

If school boards can arrange to adopt school texts before January first, asserts Mr. Kendall instead of waiting until the end of the school year in June, a large saving in the bookbinding trade will result. Ordering school text books earlier in the year will, it is declared help to regularize employment in the school book-trade, making uniform hours of work and rates of pay possible throughout the year. In one plant at the present time the hours of labor so vary between winter and summer, that on a basis of 100 per cent as the flat weekly wage, operators during the summer months, because of overtime, earn about 130 per cent, and during the winter months about 60 per cent. The workers are obliged to work very long hours in the summer time and go without vacations.

Earlier ordering of school books will also conserve human energy, because it will make it possible to run a factory with a minimum number of employees; it will save machinery, because less will be required to produce; and it will save coal in conserving the heat, light, and power. Furthermore, the efficiency of the plant can be greatly increased where work is uniform in quantity, and the cost of production is much less in a plant where the product is produced more uniformly.

As a result of Mr. Kendall's suggestion, the Commissioner of Education has written to every city school board in the country asking whether it will not be possible hereafter to order school books before the first of January.

BOOK-TRADE ASSOCIATIONS

RECORD BREAKING CROWD CELEBRATES "SCRIBNER NIGHT" IN PHILADELPHIA

EVEN as Hans Breitmann, Charles Scribner's Sons gave a party—and the Philadelphia trade will talk about it for many a day to come! The old Franklin Inn Club on Camac Street groaned under such an assemblage as it has rarely held in its long existence; the little two-story building was packed with over a hundred guests. There was a two ring circus going on at dinner since it was impossible to crowd all the guests into either the upstairs or the downstairs dining room.

Charles Scribner's Sons, the hosts of the evening, provided the abundant entertainment: Dr. Van Dyke, our ex-Minister to Holland, N. C. Wyeth, the illustrator, and Lawrence Perry, favors at each place in the form of a dummy binding of leading novels on the Scribner fall list filled with smokes and a gorgeous red, white and blue flower. Mr. Wyeth spoke on the need for more conscientious and idealistic training of young artists, Mr. Perry on some of the fine points of the new science of Camouflage, and Dr. Van Dyke unloosed the prize bombardment of the evening—a triple barreled charge of art, humor and patriotism.

A feature of the evening was the handsomely printed "Especially Illustrated Fall List and Menu." This sixteen page "Menu" contained among other things reproductions of twenty-two original drawings by Frost, Grace Drayton, James Montgomery Flagg, Wyeth, Yohn and other noted artists, drawn especially for the occasion and each picture representing a title on the fall list. Several of these are reproduced elsewhere in this issue. Those present were asked to write out the titles represented by each picture and four of the original drawings were awarded as prizes to the following who guessed the greatest number of titles: Mr. Foot, of George W. Jacobs & Co.; "The Gang," an anonymous aggregation of shrinking violets; J. W. Legallez, of George W. Jacobs & Co.; and Charles H. Scott, Jr. In order to do away admirable sympathy the readjustment that is inevitable. This book is the second volume in the trilogy, "The Rising City," to which "A Prelude to Adventure" is the prolog and "The Duchess of Wrexe" is the first volume.

ONE OF THE MOST dramatic aspects of the most dramatic conflict on record, since Lucifer headed the revolt of the angels, is the part played in the inception of the war by the near East (that country which within the last week or so has been brought particularly into focus thru the closing in of the British about Jerusalem and by the news of the death of a very gallant soldier, General Maude, in these regions). In "The War and the Bagdad Railway," about to be published by the Lippincott Company, Dr. Morris Jastrow, Jr., tells the story of that imperial project, which was destined to place in the hands of Germany, when completed, exclusive control of the near East, and eventually of Egypt and India. Only 265 miles of that railroad remain to build. Americans will wish to understand the problem which they will assist to solve at the close of the war.

IN A WRITE-UP in the October issue of System, Chas. W. Treat, the Indianapolis antiquarian bookseller, the writer makes this suggestive comment: "Treat has even given the greatest thought to his manner of approaching a customer. If you enter his store briskly, with a businesslike manner, glancing around as if looking for a salesman, he guesses that you are not a real book-worm, but a person seeking some particular volume, probably a Bible or a Spanish dictionary; and in a moment he confronts you, ready to serve. If, on the contrary, you stroll over to the shelves and begin to glance over the book titles, and he is in the back of the room, he apparently pays little attention to you; but he has carefully noted your entrance and your manner. Years of experience have taught him that a bibliophile does not like to be accosted as soon as he enters the shop. Further than this, Treat does not believe in salesmanship in the old-book business. 'I simply let people know where I am,' says he, 'arrange things attractively, and let the books sell themselves.'"

MANY A BUSINESS MAN finds himself "put to it" because customers take the 2 per cent discount after the 10-day time limit, says a recent issue of System. A western wholesale house tried this letter to stop this abuse:

Our country is facing a crisis. As loyal Americans, we wish to do our "bit" in the way which will count most.

As you know, business conditions have changed almost overnight; we realize that we can render an important national service by helping to keep business going at a profit.

To do this, we must make some changes. We are sure that we shall meet with your hearty co-operation. Certain concessions which we have gladly granted in the past we can no longer continue, in justice to those who are paying their bills promptly and thereby enabling us to take advantage of the best market conditions for the benefit of all.

It has become necessary to rearrange our discount schedule, which, beginning the first of January, will be upon the following basis:

Ten days	2 %
Fifteen days	1½ %
Twenty days	1 %

We are sure that you appreciate our desire to serve you well, and to do it with fairness to all.

This letter, they report, did not call forth a single protest and effectually silenced any grumbling. It cut out those who were trying to get something to which they were not entitled, and helped materially to get cash in on time.

How QUICKLY literary output follows in the wake of events is well evidenced by the South American histories, gift books and travels which have been making their way thru the presses of late. Perhaps the Panama Canal began to wake us up to the commercial importance of South America—at any rate we have had Harry Franck vagabonding down its ruggedness, Edward Lucas White writing a novel from its historical pages, and now come South American legends and a detailed study of Brazilians and their country. "The Quest of El Dorado" (Appleton) by the Rev. J. A. Zahm is a collection of thrilling expeditions which are said to have been made in search of that will-o'-the-wisp golden land. There is, of course, much interesting history and geography included in following these legendary quests of old adventurers and the volume should prove a good non-fiction seller. Clayton Sedgwick Cooper's "The Brazilians and Their Country" (Stokes) is an absorbing study of one particularly fascinating state of this remarkable country, and especially of the people living there. The illustrations cannot fail to arouse in the most sluggish land lubber a desire to see the fringed palm trees and the most perfect oval of the bay at Rio.

THE Britton Publishing Company, firm believers in the value of advertising and in the importance of co-operation between publisher and bookseller, have instituted an advertising campaign designed to create a demand upon the dealer for their books that will reach practically every reader in the United States. Among the periodicals used are The Saturday Evening Post, Collier's Weekly, McClure's Magazine, The Ladies' Home Journal, The Woman's Home Companion, Butterick Trio, Century, Bookman, Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, Motion Picture Magazine, Review of Reviews, Metropolitan, Hearst's Magazine, Literary Digest, Outlook, Nation, Everybody's Magazine, Popular Mechanics, Film Fun, the nine important publications of the Religious Press Association and the principal daily newspapers in the United States. All that the publisher asks of the bookseller is to check up his stock and if not sufficient to fill the demand created by the advertising, to order thru his jobber or direct from the publisher. The "Big 4" of the Britton list which are being given this splendid publicity are "Laugh and Live," "The Road to Ambition," "The Case of Mary Sherman" and "A Thousand Ways to Please a Husband." As a supplement to this advertising campaign to the reader and to impress its importance upon the dealer's mind, the Britton Publishing Company has issued a "Red Book" in which are reproduced facsimiles of the advertising with figures of circulation, dates of issue, etc. If you have not received the Red Book, send for it and see for yourself how the net circulation of this advertising totals up to 19,162,274.

An Easterner deserts his wife and boy and goes West. After a series of emotional adventures he embraces religion, and commits bigamy, by marrying the wealthiest woman in the place—a half sister to a lovely Indian girl who is the motive power in the life of the deserted son of the deacon, who had come to mete out vengeance on his worthless father. How the deacon evades the law, what becomes of his two beautiful wives, and how the romance of the Indian girl is solved makes the story.

with a tie for fifth place W. B. Easton, of Wanamaker's, J. V. D. Lewis, and E. W. Mumford, of the Penn Publishing Co., each received an autographed copy of a book by the speakers of the evening.

At the brief business session preceding the speaking it was announced that the Association dues have been increased to five dollars. A Nominating Committee consisting of Messrs. Lewis, Le Gallez, and Shoemaker was also appointed.

AMBASSADOR GERARD GUEST OF NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS

JAMES W. GERARD, former United States Ambassador to Germany, addressed the New York Booksellers' League at their November dinner at the Aldine Club on November 21. Mr. Gerard told many interesting things about war-time conditions in Germany and was cheered many times by those present for his patriotic statements. Henry Rood, journalist, addressed the League after Mr. Gerard.

The following have been elected to membership since the last meeting of the League:

PITTSBURGH BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS ELECT OFFICERS

The Pittsburgh Booksellers and Stationers Association has elected the following officers for the coming year:

Chas. H. Clough, president; F. C. Herget, vice-president; Robt. Crawford, treasurer; J. A. Cooper, recording secretary; Geo. H. Alexander, corresponding secretary. The Annual Dinner will take place on Jan. 29th. The Banquet Committee consists of: Chas. H. Langbein, chairman; Jos. Blume, Robt. Crawford.

"UNFAIR REDUCTION OF ROYALTIES"—A CORRECTION

New York, November 16th, 1917.

Editor the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

Enclosed I am sending you a copy of the correction which we expect to run in the next issue of the Bulletin. I would appreciate it very much indeed if you would run this correction in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY also, if possible.

ERIC SCHULER.

Secretary, Authors League of America.

"In the leading article of our October issue entitled 'Unfair Reduction of Royalties,' an unfortunate and regrettable error in composition rendered injustice to the publisher referred to in the second case.

"The statement was made that the author's consent to the new arrangement (i.e., payment of royalties on the old retail price of his book, altho that price had been raised) was not requested before payments were made.

"The word 'not' was printed by mistake.

"The statement should be: 'The author's consent to the new arrangement (which of course diminished the percentage of his royalty) was requested before payments were made.'

"It was not our intention to suggest in any way that the new 'arrangement' was put forward except conditionally upon the author's consent."

ENGLISH ORDER IN COUNCIL OF FEBRUARY, 1915, MAKES ENGLISH COPYRIGHT THRU CANADA UNNECESSARY

Boston, November 1, 1917.

Editor the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

Referring to your article in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of September 29th entitled "Why Copyright thru Canada is not effective for England" and to the former article on the subject of Canadian copyright referred to in that article, we desire to call to your attention another suggestion on this subject of copyright. For the reasons stated by Mr. MacGillivray in his opinion, it seems not probable that copyright can still be obtained in Great Britain by first publication in Canada, and quite clear that if publishers desire the protection of copyright in Canada they must copyright their publications in Canada, but is the question now material whether copyright in Canada secures copyright in Great Britain in view of the Order in Council made on the 3rd day of February, 1915, respecting British copyright in works belonging to citizens of the United States?

The English Copyright Act of 1911 (sec. 29) provided that

"His Majesty may by Order in Council direct that this Act (except such parts, if any, thereof as may be specified in the Order) shall apply (a) to works published in a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if they were first published within the parts of his Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends."

And further provided that before making any Order in Council under this section in respect to any foreign country, His Majesty shall be satisfied that that foreign country has made or has undertaken to make such provisions, if any, as it appears to His Majesty expedient to require for the protection of works entitled to copyright under the provisions of Part I of this Act, and further, that "the provisions of this Act as to the delivery of copies of books shall not apply to works first published in such country, except so far as is provided by the Order."

The Order in Council of February 3rd, 1915, provided that "the Copyright Act of 1911, including the provisions as to existing works, shall, subject to the provisions of the said act and of this Order, apply

(a) to literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works, the authors of the United States of America, in like manner as if the authors had been British subjects;

(b) in respect of residence in the United States of America, in like manner as if such residence had been residence in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which the said act extends, provided that

(i) the term of copyright within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this order applies shall not exceed that conferred by the law of the United States of America;

(ii) the enjoyment of the rights conferred by this Order shall be subject to the accomplishment of the conditions and formalities prescribed by the law of the United States of America."

This Order in Council, under the second clause of the Order applies to all His Majesty's dominions, colonies and possessions, with the exception of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Newfoundland. So far then as the Copyright Act of 1911 is concerned, it is clear as Mr. MacGillivray stated that it "does not extend to a self-governing dominion, unless declared by the Legislature of that dominion to be in force therein. The Canadian Parliament has not so declared and therefore the Act does not extend to Canada."

So far as the Order in Council is effective under its second clause, Canada is specially excepted from the provisions of that Order. The conclusion would therefore seem to be

(a) Canadian copyright is necessary for copyright protection in Canada and that Canadian copyright secures copyright protection in other parts of the British Dominions is, to say the least, doubtful.

(b) Under the Order in Council, the author in the United States who has secured valid copyright in the United States is protected in like manner as if the author had been a British subject and in respect of residence in the United States in like manner as if such residence had been residence in the part of His Majesty's Dominions to which the Act of 1911 extends, subject only to the conditions that the term of copyright within the parts of His Majesty's Dominions to which this Order applies, will not exceed that conferred by the law of the United States; and the enjoyment of the rights conferred by the Order are subject to the accomplishment of the conditions and formalities prescribed by the law of the United States and under distinct provisions of the Order such American copyright affords no copyright protection in Canada.

It would be interesting to have the opinion of the eminent counsel who have been quoted in your various articles on the subject of Canadian copyright also on the operation and effect of this Order in Council of Feb., 1915.

SILVER, BURDETT AND COMPANY.

OBITUARY NOTES

HARRY E. BROWNE, of Browne Bros., booksellers and stationers of Springfield, Mass., died on October 25.

JAMES FOSTER, secretary to the English house of Macmillan & Co., Ltd., who last June completed fifty years of service with the firm, was recently presented by the directors with a handsome silver inkstand as an expression of appreciation of his long service. One of Mr. Foster's many labors of love in connection with his work was the compilation thru a period of several years of a careful bibliographical catalog of Macmillan publications from 1843 to 1889.

JOHN W. FOSTER, one of the oldest members of the American diplomatic corps, having acted as minister to Spain, Secretary of State under Harrison, participated in peace negotiations between China and Japan, been ambassador on a special mission to Great Britain and Russia in 1897, and representative of China to the 2nd Hague Conference, died at his home in Washington, D. C., November 15. General Foster is the author of a "Biography of Matthew Watson Foster," "A Century of American Diplomacy," "American Diplomacy in the Orient," "Arbitration and The Hague Court," "The Practice of Diplomacy" and "Diplomatic Memoirs." The latter he had just been writing prior to his death.

WILLIAM TIMOTHY CALL, secretary and treasurer of the Gage Publishing Company, editor, philosopher, poet and an authority on checkers in the United States and England, died suddenly in New York on November 15, in his sixty-second year. After leaving Bowdoin College in 1878 Mr. Call came to New York and entered newspaper work. Later he became editor of the Boot and Shoe Weekly. Twenty-five years ago, with U. W. Gage, he established the Gage Publishing Company. Checker players in every country where the game is played studied the books Mr. Call wrote on the subject. The titles of his many books are as follows: "Ellsworth's Checker Book," "R. D. Yates, Checker Player," "The Common Checker Player," "The Safe Checker Player," "Midget Problems in Checkers," "The Literature of Checkers," "A Plea for Shakespeare and Whitman," "Boy's Book on Logic," "Ten Great Little Poems," "You and I and the Stars," "Life As It Is," "Blackmail," "The Little Grammar," "New Method in Multiplication and Division," "Shorthand for General Use," "Scientific Solitaire," "Rambles with the Switcher," "Kboo: the Counting Game," and "Vocabulary of Checkers."

PERSONAL NOTES

HOWARD C. LEWIS one of the most popular of the younger salesmen who has represented Dodd, Mead & Co. on the Coast and in the larger cities of the Middle West for the past four years, has joined the heavy artillery service.

FRANK LEWIS, son of Walter S. Lewis, the well-known Philadelphia bookseller, has joined the Grosset & Dunlap traveling staff. Frank, according to a member of the Philadelphia trade, is a "chip off the old block" and therefore a decidedly welcome addition to trade circles. He was in ambulance work abroad until the recent death of his mother.

PERIODICAL NOTES

THE ENGLISH EDITION of the World's Work, edited by Chalmers Roberts, now bears the sub-title, "An Anglo-American Review."

Recreation published in New York, will be consolidated with the Outer's Book, published by the Outer's Book Co. of Chicago, starting with the December issue.

POSTMASTER PATTEN, acting under instructions from Mr. Burleson, proceeded, on November 13, to take away the second class mailing rights of the Call, the well-known Socialist daily. C. W. Ervin, managing editor of the Call, has stated that in spite of "the arbitrary and autocratic action of the Post Office Department" the out-of-town circulation of the newspaper would be continued thru the first class mail.

THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS of the postal authorities' movement against the Masses is the indictment on November 20 by the Federal Grand Jury of seven of the editors, writers and cartoonists connected with this publication for criminal violation of the espionage act. Another indictment charging the Masses Publishing Company and C. Merrill Rogers, Jr., business manager, with misuse of the mails, was also filed. The seven persons charged with having conspired to cause dissension, disloyalty, mutiny and insubordination among the members of the military and naval forces of the United States, thru their radical writings and cartoons, are Max Eastman, editorial writer of the Masses, charged, between June 15 and Nov. 19, 1917, with writing and causing to be published in the August issue an article entitled "A Question"; Floyd Dell, managing editor, accused of the same offense in relation to an article entitled "Conscientious Objectors"; John Reed, accused of having written and published an article called "Knit a Straitjacket for Your Soldier Boy"; Josephine Bell, accused of having written and caused to be published in the August issue, a poem called "A Tribute"; Henry J. Glinkenkamp, accused of having drawn for the October issue a picture representing a skeleton symbolizing death, taking the measurements of a drafted soldier for his coffin; Arthur Young, charged with having drawn a picture entitled "Having Their Fling," reproduced in the September issue. Rogers is accused of having, as business manager, provided for the distribution of the magazine "against the peace of the United States and their dignity and contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

SOME of the British soldiers interned in Switzerland are being taught bookbinding.

HENRY MALKAN and the members of his staff subscribed to $9000 of the second Liberty Loan.

C. ARTHUR PEARSON, LTD., the London publishing house, has increased the price of its series of 1s. net cloth-bound novels to 1s. 3d. net.

"MYLES MUREDACH," author of the novel "Charred Wood," just published by The Reilly & Britton Co., is the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Francis Clement Kelley, head of the Catholic Church Extension Society.

IN THE LIST OF SUBSCRIBERS to the Second Liberty Loan printed in these columns, the sum credited to Frederick A. Stokes should have read Frederick A. Stokes Co. and employees.

IN A TRADE NOTE in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of three weeks ago two significant words were inadvertently omitted. The note should have read: "Owing to the shortage of gold in Great Britain, there is a prohibition of the use of gold-leaf for book-binding purposes."

AT TWO BREAKFASTS tendered him by Henry Malkan on successive Sunday mornings at the Hotel Manhattan and Hotel Woodstock Col. J. A. Moss, author of many military books, told the members of the Malkan staff how he happened to begin writing military books and some of the problems involved in this sort of authorship.

COPIES OF THE Christmas Bookshelf of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will be supplied to the trade at the rate of $1.80 a dozen, blank imprint, or $12 a hundred with imprint. It is the handsomest holiday list the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has ever prepared and it ought to make a notable souvenir for the best buyers on the mailing list of any bookseller.

THIRTY YEARS of exile in Siberia came to an end when Kerensky's forces liberated the victims of an obsolete monarchy. But during those laborious years of persecution Madame Breshkovskaya devoted every thought to her shackled people as is shown in the reminiscences and letters which her friend Alice Stone Blackwell has gathered into the volume "Little Grandmother of the Russian Revolution," published to-day by Little, Brown.

SARA TEASDALE, whose new book of poems, "Love Songs," has just been published by the Macmillan Company, is in private life Mrs. Ernst B. Filsinger. Her home is in St. Louis, where she was born and has always lived. Her new book contains the group of poems, "Songs Out of Sorrow," which won the prize offered by the Poetry Society of America for the best unpublished verse read at its meetings last year.

NOT LEAST among Christmas juveniles, in fact one of the most brilliant leaders, is the "Stokes' Wonder Book of Fairy Tales" edited by Elisabeth Vernon Quinn, a splendid quarto containing all the old favorite fairy stories and several others of newer stamp like "Peter Rabbit" and "Little Black Sambo." Over a hundred illustrations brighten the pages, and besides these there are twenty-four full page color drawings that make Jack and the Beanstalk climb again and Beauty fondle the mane of a very tawny King of Beasts.

EVERY BOY WHO has decided to enter the marine engineers must know or learn something about his subject. Few and far between are the boys who "know it all," so this handy little volume, "The Blue Book of Facts on Marine Engineering," which has just been published by the Ocean Publishing Co., will save one taking a course on an intricate subject and likewise furnishes in condensed and efficient form all the facts necessary in this field.

IN CO-OPERATION with Doubleday, Page & Co., publishers of O. Henry's works, the General Film Company gave a program of films of some of the most interesting of the O. Henry pictures on Wednesday, November 14th, at Wurlitzer Hall, New York, to which many of the local book-trade were invited. These O. Henry films have been coming out about one a month for the past year. Every showing of these pictures is of course excellent publicity for the local bookseller.

"OVER THERE: Poems of Appreciation, Consolation and Indignation," by Harvey M. Watts, a member of the editorial staff of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, was recently published by the John C. Winston Co. The poems, mostly sonnets, with a few lyrics, reflect the emotions of the hour and deal with all phases of the war. They are written with forcefulness and patriotic feeling and range from the adaptation of Virgil's description of Polyphemus as suggesting the Kaiser to the more delicate phrasing of "Taps" and "Going West."

THE BRITISH BOOKBINDERS' raw material market is still in a bad way, says the British & Colonial Printer & Stationer for Oct. 18th. The strawboard quotation then was £42, with agents' explanation that every shipment fluctuates in price. Buyers are now up against the difficulty that they have received their quarterly quota, and for many the situation is serious enough. They are thus compelled to seek elsewhere for small amounts, for which a prodigious price is asked, and, unfortunately, must be paid. In these cases as much as £60 is not an uncommon figure.

JULIET WILBOR TOMPKINS never labels her stories "glad" but she succeeds far better in leaving you with the quiet pleasure that makes you hum as you go back to your work than any number of Pollyannas or Charlie Chaplins. In "At the Sign of the Oldest House" which Bobbs-Merrill is bringing out this month you will find Pansy—whose name she knows is ridiculous—but who has on eye for every beauty in the antique shop of St. Augustine near the "oldest house in America." Her charm and grace fill both shop and house, so that no one who wants a wise, tender and laughing story will be a bit disappointed.

EMPEY's graphic war talks continue to draw record breaking crowds and the enthusiasm generated at these lectures should mean even greater sales for "Over the Top" and "First Call" for those dealers who play up his lecture visit to their city. Following is Sergeant Empey's schedule for the next few weeks: November 27, Philadelphia, Pa. Academy of Music; November 28 and 29, New York Carnegie Hall; December 4, Philadelphia, Pa. Academy of Music; 5, Norfolk, Va.; 7, Washington, D. C., National Geographic Society; 10, Pittsfield, Mass.; 11, Providence, R. I.; 12, Bangor, Maine; 14, Worcester, Mass.; 17, Hartford, Conn.

THE ENGLISH BOOK-TRADE should jump at this chance offered to them by the Royal Commission on Paper, as follows: "By general License all persons are now at liberty between 1 August, 1917, and 31 January, 1918, to despatch one-third of the weight of advertising matter issued between 1 August, 1916, and 31 January, 1917." This means that where a bookseller has sent out 3000 catalogs between Aug. 1, 1916, and Jan. 31, 1917, he may now send out 1000 between Aug. 1, 1917 and Jan. 31, 1918. The only unfortunate thing about it is that most printers are so short-handed that they are unable to turn out catalogs quickly. Where they could finish one in a fortnight they now require a month or two.

BOOK PAPER MANUFACTURERS made an agreement with the Federal Trade Commission on November 8 by which alleged unfair trade practices will be stopped and no further action will be taken on the commission's complaint that the manufacturers conspired to enhance prices. Manufacturers doing an annual business of $80,000,000 are affected by the agreement. Dissolution of the bureau of statistics maintained by the book paper manufacturers, and charged with having been the medium thru which they acted, first was ordered, and then each and all the respondents to the complaint were directed to desist forever from continuing membership in the bureau, from reorganizing it or from becoming members of any similar organization.

EVERYONE IS SCANNING the daily newspapers breathlessly to find how affairs progress on the Piave, and it is the "psychological moment" for the bookseller to make a drive with "Doubleday, Page & Co.'s Geographical Manual and New Atlas," a blue ribbon collection of maps of all the battlefronts of the Great War as well as of every country in the world. C. O. Sylvester Mawson who has compiled this excellent intelligence bureau has visited most of the countries described, and there is more data to every square inch on subjects political, economic, racial, historic, and relating to vegetation and population than you can imagine in a year. This atlas will serve as Blue Book and postal guide as well, in fact there's not much that you can't find in its 402 pages.

WRITTEN IN 1914 before the war had flashed up, Hugh Walpole's latest novel, "The Green Mirror," just published by George H. Doran, seems at first to be but a tranquil pool reflecting only the quiet life of a stately old English family replete with traditions and customs, invincible in a "family feeling" which keeps them bound together. But like the famous mirror of Shalott, this glass also cracks "from side to side" with the onrush of new thoughts and new ideas of a younger generation. Philip Mark's advent has something to do with the change, but after all, it is a presaging of the social disturbance which England was so soon to know on a larger scale, and shows with production of plays treated from a popular standpoint with a consideration of individual expression and how to get it from the untrained.

(Back section, unspecified position)
One page	30 00
Half page	17 00
Quarter page	9 00
Eighth page	5 00
One-sixteenth page	2 50

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

 Tom Kelly, a student at Harvard, realizes the height of his ambition when in his junior year, as a result of athletic prowess, he is received into one of the exclusive college clubs. This is the beginning of a reckless career in pursuit of luxury and wealth, and we find him after graduation accepted by Newport "society." Here he indulges in all the pleasures of the wealthy and barely escapes moral shipwreck. He utterly neglects his timid, insignificant old mother but we feel that she has an influence over him even in the midst of his dissipation. When he is suddenly called home by her death he is overcome with remorse and awakes to a realization of the real values of life.

PUBLISHED NOVEMBER 5

One of the most remarkable human documents ever issued, and the most important contribution to the history of the United States published in recent years

Private and Official Correspondence of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler

These volumes contain practically no editorial or biographical comment, but tell the story of the dramatic and important episodes in the history of the United States during the Civil War period, with which General Butler was vitally connected, by means of actual letters, orders, and despatches (mostly now for the first time published) passing between General Butler and President Lincoln, the Departments of State, War, and Treasury, the Governors of various States, Commanders-in-chief, officers both in the Federal and Confederate service, and individuals. Throughout the volumes no attempt is made to glorify or condemn. The letters and papers tell their own story with spectacular directness.

Five Octavo Volumes of about 650 pp. each, boxed, Price $20.00 the set.

Two To One

If you order a book direct from the publisher and his stock of it is exhausted, he reports the item "out of print." Your one chance of getting the book is lost.

However, when you order a book from us you stand two chances of getting it—either we have the book in stock or we get it from the publisher's stock, to which we have ready access.

And, as we frequently have in stock items that the publisher is out of, you often receive "out of print" reports from him on items which we can supply. It's two chances to one that you'll get it from us. Plain, isn't it?

"A Masterpiece"

N. Y. SUN

"Second Lieutenant MacQuarrie . . . tells you all about it with open mind and open heart and an honesty and fervor that represents the finest kind of message that anyone from 'over there' who has been in it, can bring. . . . And the young soldier will like the information, the manliness and the brotherliness that inspires these pages and makes the volume a true vade mecum in these days of trial and tribulation."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Gives an intimate informative and stirring account of Battle, Fear, Courage, Women, Disease, Wise Precautions, The Tommy, The Poilu, Etc., Etc.

How To LIVE AT THE FRONT

HECTOR MACQUARRIE, B. A., CANTAB.

Second Lieutenant Royal Field Artillery

12 Illustrations, $1.25 Net

Unquestionably one of the Season's Big Successes. It has been endorsed and praised by Officers, Soldiers, Reviewers and Prominent Men as one of the few books that Americans must read if they wish to learn the truth about war conditions.

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT: "An exceedingly valuable book. It is simply, almost ingenuously, written . . . outlines all the difficulties and privileges of the different stages in a soldier's development. . . . In fact, from every aspect, light, serious, deeply human, and sincerely religious, every American soldier will be helped by reading Lieutenant MacQuarrie's book."

ARMY AND NAVY REGISTER: "Intended for the guidance of the man who is going to France . . . the author handles matters frankly and helpfully—he writes in a human, wholehearted manner of how upon the battlefield a man's character can be made or destroyed. The general reader will read it and gain insight; the young soldier will find it a source of inspiration and instruction."

NEW YORK SUN: "Lieutenant MacQuarrie tells the American boys what they are to expect when they get on the other side, opening their eyes to discomforts and perils of all sorts, which they can avoid if they wish. . . . A masterpiece, a straight-from-the-shoulder talk that is neither goody nor medical, but such as men who are in earnest use among themselves. . . . If any book can make up for the lack of personal experience in essential matters this little volume can."
